Denali's B6 kit is a low-profile auxiliary LED light pod designed to operate as both running and brake lights. Six high power LEDs (drawing 6 watts total) are housed within the B6's 4.4" wide x 1.1" high x 0.4" thick IP67-rated waterproof enclosure, which mounts above or below the motorcycle's license plate frame via an integrated aluminum bracket. For ease of fitment, the bracket's mounting holes are slotted, so they can fit a variety of the existing holes on various license plate frame sizes. Two M6 bolts are included for this purpose.

Wiring the B6 is a relatively simple affair, involving connecting the black wire to ground, the red wire to the taillight circuit, and the orange wire to the brake light. The user can elect to wire the B6 as a running light only, brake light only, or both running and brake lights. A small run of wiring and 3 Posi-Taps are included to complete the wiring job.

Out on the road, the B6 adds a welcome degree of conspicuity, especially when wired as both brake and running lights. Indeed, its output of 870 raw lumens is exponentially brighter than the typical motorcycle brake light, and really pops at night. For motorcycles equipped with CANbus, Denali offers a CANsmart controller that adds extra functionality to the B6, allowing the brake light flash pattern to be programmed, as well as auto brake light functionality upon deceleration. Overall, the Denali B6 is an easy to install, highly functional accessory that can add a measure of safety to any motorcycle.
